STATE ASSOCIATION

USDA and FWS are working to protect the world's largest and oldest living tree, the Methuens, which are located in the Methuen River watershed in the state of New Hampshire. The Methuens are a group of ancient, giant redwood trees that are estimated to be over 1,000 years old. They are located in a remote area of the state, and are surrounded by a mix of forest and open land. The trees are a significant part of the local ecosystem, and are also a popular destination for hikers and other outdoor enthusiasts. The Methuens are currently facing a number of threats, including logging, fire, and climate change. USDA and FWS are working to develop a management plan for the trees, which will include measures to protect them from these threats. The plan will also include measures to improve the health of the trees, and to provide for their long-term survival.

OTHER MEMBERS OF FAMILY

A close-up photograph of a handwritten signature 'L. J. Jones' in dark ink on a piece of lined paper. The signature is written in a cursive style. The 'L' is large and loops around the 'J'. The 'J' has a long, sweeping tail that extends downwards and to the right, ending under the word 'Jones'. The word 'Jones' is written in a more standard cursive. The paper has horizontal lines, and a vertical line, possibly a margin or a fold, is visible to the right of the signature.
